

STAR 000
V2 – May 2013

Administration

Safety Targeted Awareness Reports (STARS) have been created by the ERA Air Safety Group (ASG) following Safety Information Discussions (SIDS) undertaken at meetings of the ASG.

Application

STARS provide generic guidelines for the use of pilots and/or operators – however, the recommendations given within the STARS shall not supersede or override any requirements or recommendations given by appropriate Regulatory Authorities, Aircraft Manufacturer, or Airline. The material contained within the STARS can be cut and pasted into a suitable format for your airline's operations and changes may be made to allow for particular scenarios or differences; however, please give credit to the ERA ASG when doing so.

Where the STAR has evolved from a more complete briefing paper, or flight safety article, an appropriate reference will be provided within the STAR. It is recommended that this additional material is used by flight safety managers within their own safety/operational publications in order to provide readers with a better understanding.

Disclaimer

STARS have been created by the ERA ASG following Safety Information Discussions (SIDs) and provide generic guidelines for the use of pilots and/or operators – however, the recommendations given within the STAR shall not supersede or override any requirements or recommendations given by appropriate Regulatory Authorities, Aircraft Manufacturer, or Airline. The material contained within the STARS can be cut and pasted into a suitable format for your airline's operations and changes may be made to allow for particular scenarios or differences, please give credit to the ERA ASG when doing so. STARS should only be used with the intention of improving flight safety through education and ERA takes no responsibility for inappropriate use of this information.

The above disclaimer is included at the end on all STARS.

Validity

ERA retains the right to amend or withdraw STARS whenever necessary. Each edition will be appended with a version "V" number and validity date. For a full list of latest versions (STAR INDEX) and to download all STARS check the ERA website www.eraa.org

Interpretation of Text

Throughout all STARS a standard use of font, bold and bullets has been attempted, such that:

- Text with sub-clauses, or dislocated sentences will be bulleted with a "dot" •
- Headings and text needing special emphasis are written in Bold
- Recommended actions are bulleted with a "plane" →
- Recommended actions of most importance are Bold and bulleted with a "plane" →

Feedback

Any errors, omissions or comments should be notified to ERA as soon as possible; this can be achieved by returning the relevant STAR, appropriately amended in a different colour and including your contact details, to: airsafety@eraa.org

